

How will you speak to growing foreign markets?

“Cool” means two things in America. It means “almost cold”, but to one generation it may also be used to describe something “good”, “hip”, “mod” or “phat”, while other generations would mock this use. Now imagine translating the current local, generational language of Russian, Farsi or Vietnamese to the target audience you wish to motivate. If you don’t know the culture well, it can be impossible.

Anybody can hire a translating service. But not every translation service is effective. This is where Creative Visions can help.

We have teamed up with 2000+ linguists, technical staff and communicators around the world which translate over 5,000,000 words each year. It would be easier for us to list the number of languages we have not translated, than those we have. But most importantly, we create effective foreign communications that speak to the chosen target audience on a level they can understand, appreciate and respond to.

Now that’s cool.
